

EYE DROPS FOR CATARACT SURGERY

Cataract surgery can provide excellent vision through removal of the cataract and simultaneous reduction of nearsightedness, farsightedness, and/or astigmatism. Medications in the form of eye drops are used before and after surgery to ensure proper healing, to prevent infection, and to limit scarring. These drops are mandatory and are important in achieving the best outcomes after surgery.

Medications can be expensive, particularly brand name prescriptions. At Eye Center of Texas, we offer both a brand name option for drops and a generic option for drops. You can have brand name medications, or you can have the generic formulations - it's your choice, but we want you to make an educated decision.

In general, there are three medications prescribed for cataract surgery—an antibiotic, a nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory (NSAID) medication, and a steroid medication, which also treats inflammation. Thankfully, cataract surgery is a very safe procedure with a low likelihood of complications whether you choose branded or generic medications. Infection rate is very low with no difference being shown between branded antibiotic medications or generic antibiotic medications. There have been increased reports of corneal complications with generic NSAID formulations however these complications have also been seen with the branded products at a lesser rate. We recommend the branded NSAID. In our opinion, the brand vs. generic difference is most significant in the steroid medication, as generic ocular steroids have been shown to be less effective in decreasing inflammation; therefore, we recommend the branded steroid and will give you a coupon to use at the pharmacy to help you afford the branded steroid.

If your insurance company covers the medications, then your co-pay may be similar with a brand name drop or a generic drop. Typical co-pay amounts are $10-$50 per medication. The amount you pay can also depend on whether or not you have met your deductible for your pharmacy plan. If you have not met your deductible or are paying out of pocket without insurance, the generic medications will certainly be less expensive than the branded options.

Eye Center of Texas recommends and will write for the branded medications unless you request a generic prescription be written for you. For Medicaid patients, we will write only for medications covered by Medicaid unless you request otherwise.

I have read and understand the above information regarding the use of brand medications vs. generic medications around cataract surgery. I understand that branded medications will be prescribed for me unless I ask for the generic formulations.
